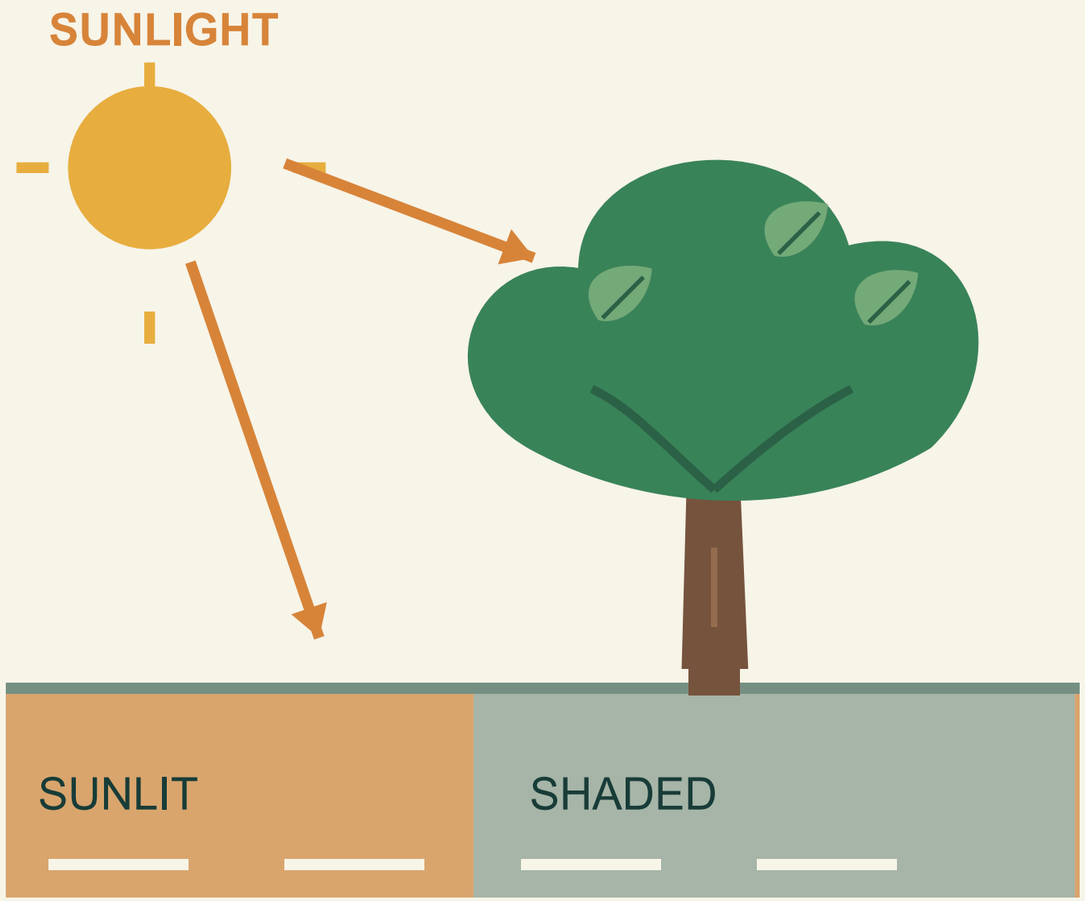
How trees cool a street

Two ways: shade surfaces and cool nearby air.

1 Shade: less surface heating

Leaves intercept sunlight.

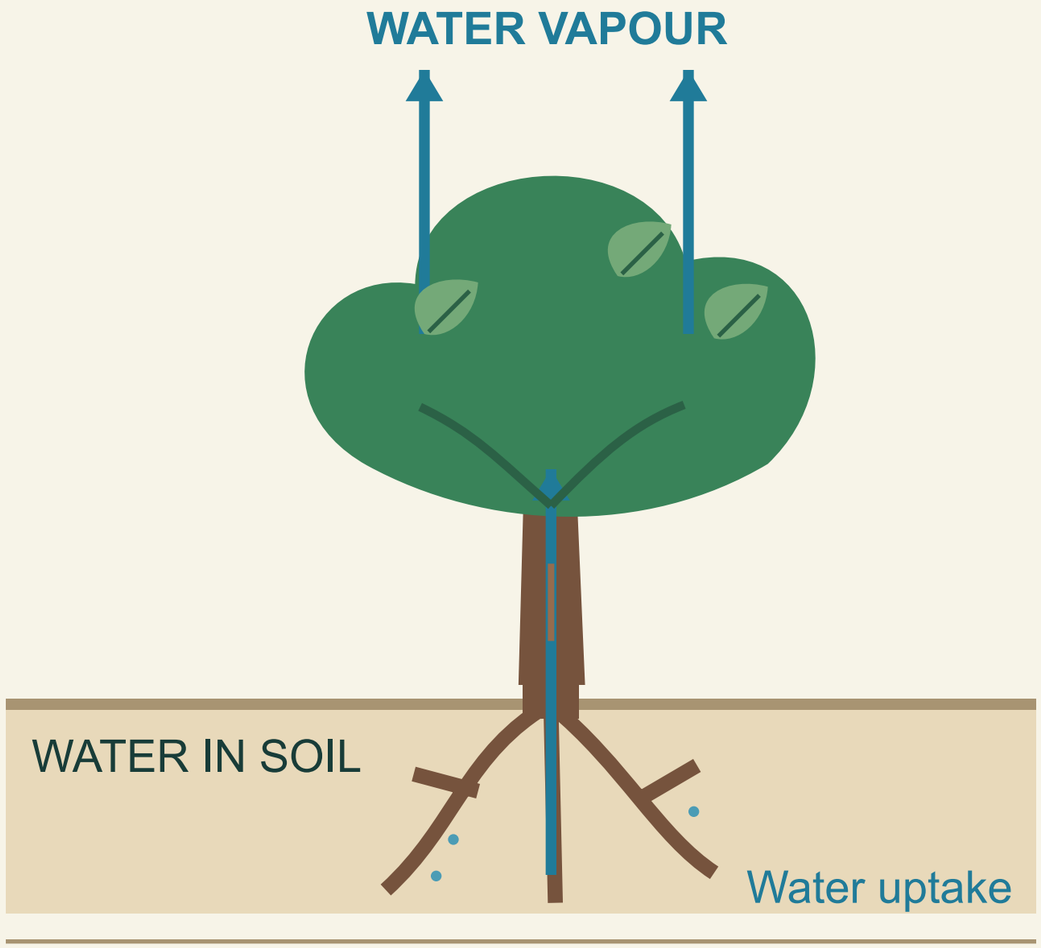
Less solar energy reaches pavement.



2 Evapotranspiration

Soil water travels from roots to leaves.

Evaporation uses heat; air can cool.



Cooling depends on tree cover, water availability and local conditions.

Concept diagram / not a planting specification.

Sources: US EPA; US Forest Service (2024).